

Pregnancy & New Baby Help

Expecting or just had a baby? There's free help with health care, healthy food, baby supplies, and support — for moms and babies. Below are the main national starting points. Tick the box once you've checked each one.

⚠ BEFORE YOU START

Pregnancy makes you eligible for programs you may not have qualified for before — including Medicaid and WIC. Sign up early to get prenatal care and support from the start. Applying is free.

1 Health Coverage for Mom & Baby

Free or low-cost coverage through pregnancy and after.

☐ Medicaid for Pregnancy

Free coverage for prenatal care, delivery, and (in most states) a full year after birth.

→ www.medicaid.gov/medicaid/eligibility/index.html

☐ CHIP — Coverage for Kids

Low-cost coverage for your baby and children, and in many states for pregnant women.

→ www.insurekidsnow.gov

2 Healthy Food for Your Family

Free nutritious food and feeding support.

☐ WIC — Women, Infants & Children

Free healthy food, formula, breastfeeding support, and nutrition help through your child's 5th birthday.

→ www.fns.usda.gov/wic

3 Support & Home Visits

Free guidance and a helping hand for new parents.

☐ Free Home-Visiting Programs

Trained nurses or educators visit to support healthy pregnancy and a new baby, free in many areas.

→ mchb.hrsa.gov/programs-impact/programs/home-visiting

☐ Text4baby & Maternal Health Line

Free health texts during pregnancy; call the maternal mental health line for support.

→ mchb.hrsa.gov/national-maternal-mental-health-hotline Maternal Mental Health:
1-833-852-6262

4 Baby Supplies & Essentials

Help with diapers, clothes, and gear.

☐ Diaper Banks

Free diapers through the National Diaper Bank Network. Find one near you.

→ nationaldiaperbanknetwork.org/get-help

☐ 211 — Local Baby Help

Call or search for baby supplies, cribs, car seats, and new-parent programs nearby.

→ www.211.org or dial 211

⚠ WATCH OUT FOR

Be cautious of “free baby stuff” sites that ask for payment or lots of personal data — real help comes through WIC, diaper banks, and 211. Also be wary of crisis-pregnancy centers that aren’t medical providers if you need actual prenatal care.

★ A TIP THAT HELPS

Apply for Medicaid and WIC as soon as you know you’re pregnant — early prenatal care matters, and these programs also connect you to other support for you and your baby.
